SHOWSIGHT — FROM THE EDITOR

What kids think fun these days is a mystery to me. The other day a friend said to me, "I heard a rumor that your property is for sale." Well, we have been thinking about it, due to several reasons; one, there is so much building going on all around us that we are no longer in the country; two, we are getting very tired of maintaining a large piece of property with numerous buildings with roofs that need to be routinely replaced, and...three, those damn kids down the road.

I mean it — I get so mad at those kids I'd like to strangle them. They careen up and down the road at incredible speeds; they swerve in and out of the ditches and spin doughnuts on people's lawns. (One day not too long ago Duane went out to get the mail. He collected the day's arrival, took two steps, and...the mailbox disappeared. It reappeared on the grill of the car that had just knocked it down. Duane is lucky that he's light on his feet.)

Speaking of which, a fine time was had by all at the Central Florida Kennel Club's Rock and Roll 50's dog show and party. This event, in the middle of a three-show cluster, is underwritten by Kal Kan and coordinated by Diane Albers, President of the Club. You will remember that last year the theme was the Roaring Twenties; Everybody roared and nobody was twenty. This year everybody rocked and rolled and everybody was...in a good mood. It was a gas, and next month we will have photos to prove it.

But back to those kids. The other night they decided to have even more fun, and spray painted quaint little sayings on our white board fence and the fence of our neighbors. Real cute things, like I hate Kelly, and I love Sean. Then they painted the traffic signs (Go Go Go, instead of Stop, and 95 instead of 25 mph). But the best thing they did was this...on the pavement out on TC Road they wrote their names. Now, I don't know about you, but I know about me; were I to decide to deface property, I'm not sure I'd sign my name. Extremely intelligent are these little punks.

But just when you think that you have trouble, you, you hear really bad news, and you realize just how good you have it. I want to take a moment to wish our deepest condolences to Cheryl Jackson and Joel Taylor on the death of Cheryl's brother, Joseph Jackson, in a tragic accident over the July 4th Holiday. Our thoughts are with you and your family.

But back to the little maniacs down the street: I just don't understand. You see, when I was a kid we had a lot of fun, and none of it had to do with wrecking or demolishing anything. We always thought of more innovative ways to get our kicks. And the most innovative of all was my crazy friend Michael.

Michael was really crazy, although in later years I learned the term Emotionally Disturbed. Boomerang family finances and alcoholic parents had made deep ruts in Michael's mental road at a very early age. But I didn't care; I liked him better than anyone else around and he was a lot of fun. Of course, sometimes his fun approached the maniacal. Like the games he would play in Woolworth's. We hated this one waitress, who had a very irritating voice. Well, Michael, an extremely good mimic, decided to have some fun. One day, while we were eating our banana splits, this waitress roared up to the little window out of which the food came and yelled "Hot Dawg and Ralish!". And out came a Hot Dawg and 'Ralish'. A little while later, she repeated the order and the order was repeated. A chill went up my spine; I knew that Michael was going to switch into his fun mode. And that he did; hiding behind a menu, he screeched "Hot Dawg and Ralish"; and it magically appeared. In fascination, I watched as he repeated it — "Hot Dawg and Ralish" — and an additional frankfurter was forthcoming. When the fifth hot dog appeared I was on my bike and out of there.

One day a neighbor lady was sunning herself and Michael was mad at her. He snuck up, quiet as a mouse, crawled under her chaise and made noises like a rattlesnake. You should have seen old Bertha haul it out of there. But the best little caper Michael pulled off was the Bathroom

Trick, and it is not for the fainthearted, so if you can't handle it, turn the page. Down the street there was a University Professor who, like many scholars, was very intelligent and extremely dumb. We played a lot of tricks on this fellow, but they paled in comparison to The Bathroom Trick.

Of course, not all of Michael's capers came off without a hitch. One time we were bored in the library. We got on the elevator, waited until the doors were closing, and then screamed, for some reason, "Everyone knows it's Windy!" The doors slammed shut, we collapsed with laughter, and in our glee forgot to push the Down button. The doors opened and we popped out...right into the arms of one Irate Librarian. But Michael made up for that one with...The Bathroom Trick.

One afternoon Michael and I were skulking around the neighborhood, and found ourselves, not surprisingly, in Mr. Meyer's back yard. Suddenly Michael got that familiar glint in his eyes, and I thought, Uh oh, here comes trouble. Michael pulled a trash can up to one of the back windows, hopped on top and in a kindergarten voice yelled, "Mr. Meyer! Mr. Meyer!" What are you doing? I hissed. Michael said, "Just a second - this is gonna be great!" Then Michael again hollered through the window, "Mr. Meyer! Mr. Meyer!"

As realization dawned on me a muffled voice came through the door on the other end of the bathroom into which Michael was yelling. "Yes?" Michael then said, "Mr. Meyer! Mr. Meyer! There is no toy-lit tiss-yoo!" At this point I was writhing on the ground trying to contain my mirth. We heard nothing for a second, so I stood up to peak through the window. And as I looked I saw...a hand, poking through the door, holding a roll of...you guessed it.

I don't know how long Mr. Meyer stood there delivering toy-lit tiss-yoo to an empty bath, because I was in my own back yard, at the top of a tree, reading an Archie comic book. And looking very innocent.

But not everything about Michael was hot dogs and giggles. He had deepset problems and a volcanic atmosphere at home. Down the road he was removed to some facility or other, then to a foster home, and I lost track of him. Many years later a young man walked into a tour home I owned in Galena, Illinois. He looked familiar. Sure enough, it was Michael. I hugged him and expressed my pleasure in seeing my old friend and accomplice in mischief. We went down the street for a Coke. And he was subdued. Quiet. No spark in the eyes. No smirk on the lips. Nothing. Wherever they had taken him, they had normalled him numb. And that great creative mind was dead.

I've never worried too much about running with the pack and fitting in. They made Michael fit in, and look where it got him. Michael, wherever you are, I hope you're laughing.

But nobody's laughing about those kids down the street...but just wait. There are several of us around here that remember how to have fun, and we're planning some surprises for those kids. And believe you me, they won't forget right away.

Until August, stay cool, and don't fall for the Bathroom Trick.

UPDATE

TOP TEN EXHIBITORS

★ JANUARY-JUNE 1988 AKC GAZETTE ★

Welcome to UPDATE, your monthly rating list of breeders and exhibitors out there winning points in the show ring. As most all serious Pomeranian fanciers are, in one way or another, involved in campaigning their Poms for AKC Championship points, we feel that it is important to keep tabs on the Pomeranian doings in this area.

The procedures for tallying the point scale are as follows:

The source for all points is the official show awards book of the AKC Gazette. Only this publication will be used for point credits. Exhibitors are credited with all AKC Championship points won in the Gazette year, and published monthly according to appearance in the Gazette. As keeping track of each and every AKC show in the United States is an onerous task (accomplished diligently by AKC), many times the actual show dates will vary from the date of publication (i.e.- a September show may not be published until December.). The Gazette year, as a rule, runs from about November of the previous year until September of the present calendar year.

Points are allotted to THE REGISTERED OWNER OF THE DOG AT THE TIME OF COMPETITION.

Statistician: Susan Wade. Any questions concerning UPDATE may be addressed to the editor.

A CANADIAN BREEDER'S POINT OF VIEW

by Karen Bradshaw

SHIPPING OUR PRECIOUS POMS — PART II WHEN THINGS GO WRONG...

Ed. note — Due to the nature of the subject, some of the statements contained within may seem cold-hearted. Readers must bear in mind that the average airline employee is not a dog lover, and is less than enthusiastic about shipping dogs. The only way we can protect our animals in flight is to make it extremely uncomfortable for the airline when they do not HANDLE WITH CARE. JMcG]

In the last issue I talked about the preparation for shipping our Poms by air. It is very important that you insure the dog for the purchase price. This is done at the Air Cargo counter prior to shipping, for a small fee.

The second part of this article will deal with the sick or dead Pom on arrival and what procedures you should take.

MEETING THE POM AT THE AIRPORT:

Always check the Pom over for any signs of stress. (In my case the pup was weaving and had difficulty standing.) If you suspect the pup is sick, tell the Clerks in the Cargo office. Take the Pom out of the crate immediately and give him/her a drink of WATER and some NUTRICAL (you have these with you from home). If it's dehydration from the flight, the pup should perk up within minutes. If the Pom was shipped C.O.D., make sure you pay before you leave the Cargo office. Do not refuse to pay regardless that the pup arrived sick. You are only covered by the insurance providing you pay the C.O.D. as previously arranged. If the shipping and insurance is prepaid, you are insured.

From the airport take the dog directly to the nearest Veterinarian. Do not take the dog home first, as it could mean losing your insurance claim should the dog die. Take the crate with you when you go to the Vet and have him make a report on all his findings.

EXAMPLE: If the dog was a tiny pup shipped in a bare crate with no blanket, etc...then the Vet might say the dog's condition was due to the shipper's neglect. If this were the case, I would send a copy of the Vet's report to the shipper along with the bill.

This is an example just to show the importance of a Vet's report. (In this instance, the claim would be a personal one between the buyer/seller: the airline would not be involved.)

WHAT TO DO IF THE POM IS DEAD ON ARRIVAL OR DIES SHORTLY AFTER:

If the dog arrives dead, inform the clerks at the Cargo office. This is a good time to throw a tantrum should you desire! (As devastated as you would be, it wouldn't be hard to do.) The more attention you demand won't allow them to forget you two months later when they are doing their inquiry. Also make sure they know it was a Pom. If the Breed registers, it helps. After paying your shipping bill, take the dog to the nearest Vet. Again, the dog should be with his shipping crate. Explain to the Vet that the dog arrived in this condition and that you require a full report in order to claim your insurance. Request four copies of the report.

Have the Vet send the dog away for an autopsy, requesting five copies of that report. A Government Lab is the best. Usually the Vet and Lab will send their reports directly to the Airline Claims. You should also have the Vet call the Air Cargo office and Claims office immediately after the dog dies (if it dies in his office) or if the dog was Dead on Arrival. This just backs up your claim when it is fresh in everyone's mind and it also confirms your observation of the dog's condition at the time of arrival. It also alerts the claims Officer that there was a mishap. You should be there with the Vet when he makes his call just in case you are required to answer any questions.

Explain everything in detail on the phone and in writing to the Airline Claims. This includes the time the pup left the shipper's residence to the time you picked up the dog. Always explain, in detail, what you did for the dog (if it was still alive) to help it before it died. No detail or observation on your part is too small to mention. Always inform the shipper of the mishap no matter how painful it might be.

Here are a few tips that can help!

- 1) Before shipping have the dog examined by a Vet. Get a Health Certificate. (This should be done a few days prior to shipping.)
- 2) Make sure you get a receipt for the total purchase price of the dog.
- 3) FOUR copies of the Vet report. FIVE copies of the Autopsy report. The following is a list of who should get copies.
 - 1 — Vet
 - 2 — Air Claims
 - 3 — Shipper
 - 4 — Receiver (you)
 - 5 — Laboratory (just Lab report)
- 4) Send a letter to the Claims Office with every detail in writing. (Including: Vet visit and phone calls made, etc.) Always use your Airway Bill number on all correspondence.
- 5) Should you receive a notice stating that you are not covered, re-write them with more details. You may also state in your second note that you won't use their airline again to ship or receive dogs! [Ed. note - better yet, not use the airline for any service, including human travel. J]
- 6) Airlines only insure for loss and damage of goods. Only under some circumstances will they insure for Death. This is why a Health Certificate is vital. If you can prove that the dog was healthy before shipping, you stand a better chance for claiming damages.
- 7) If the dog arrives with broken bones, etc., you would follow the same procedure as for sick. Only I would throw a real tantrum.

I hope this in some way will help any of you who may have to deal with Insurance claims, when shipping by air. In my case the Airline was "Air Canada" and they did indeed pay in my favour and were quite apologetic.

MIDWEST NEWS

On May 29, 1988, the Pomeranian Club of Michigan held their Summer Specialty in conjunction with the Kalamazoo Kennel Club all breed show. For the first time in 4 years, I was not exhibiting any dogs; I was on the other side of the ring spectating. Let me say that it was much less nerve wracking, but not quite as exciting. There was a nice entry of both puppies and adults, with good quality in every class.

ANESTHESIA AND THE TOY DOG

by Dr. Suzanne B. Rothchild

Anesthesia is a tricky business under any circumstance. In humans, there are adult doses, pediatric doses, doses for patients with renal (kidney) disease, doses for patients with liver disease, doses for patients with cardiac (heart disease), etc. In veterinary practice, there are cat doses, wild animal doses, dog doses, horse doses, etc. Should a Bullmastiff receive a similar anesthetic dose as a Chihuahua? The answer is NO! But here lies another problem. Is just a dose by weight and age the answer? Again, NO!

It has been found that cats are more sensitive to medications than dogs, and it takes "less to do the same." It has been found that the sighthound breeds are more sensitive than other breeds their size and weight and are easily over-anesthetized if dosed by weight. Why? To over-simplify the answer, it is due to a difference of bone density between breeds (and species) and the different bone-mass-to-muscle-mass ratio. Dogs that are speedy have "lighter" bones, having more air spaces in them, making the animal more capable of speed.

Valuable insight was gained into how this relates to Toys through my own misfortune. My Papillon, Ch. Josandre's The Master's Touch traumatically ruptured an intervertebral disc ("slipped a disc") and was operated on not once, but twice. The second surgery was necessary because the repair of the area from the first surgery did not hold because of the lightness of the bone involved. "Master" is a young dog and there was no evidence of disc disease or prior injury to the area. Subsequent repair was done similarly to the procedure the veterinarians use on cats, with great success. Bone samples from the surgery were studied because I had told the anesthesiologist about deaths under anesthesia and he was "intrigued," as was a colleague at another veterinary school (in Georgia). The bone samples showed density and trabeculation (the way the bone is laid down and air trapping) were similar to sighthound bone density. So if Toys are dosed by weight, they may be getting too much!

Not only is the dose of a medication or anesthetic agent important, but the type of medication is also important. Most anesthetics involve premedicating the dog with a secretion drying-up agent and a sedation agent. Narcotics and barbiturates both suppress breathing (respiration). Narcotics and their effects on the dog are reversible with the narcotic antagonist agents Narcan and Naloxone. Barbiturates and their effects are not reversible and the animal must metabolize (use up) the drug and excrete it from the body by way of the liver and/or kidney.

Premedication to reduce secretions and block vagal (nerve) reflexes, like spasm of the windpipe (trachea) and low heart rate (bradycardia), is also necessary for the safety of the dog. For Toys, both anesthesia departments at the two consulting veterinary schools recommend a drug called glycopyrrolate or Robinul (brand name). This is like the human drug atropine used most frequently before surgery in man. This drug, when given pre-operatively, reduces salivary (mouth), tracheobronchial (lung) and pharyngeal (throat) secretions; reduces the volume and free acidity of gastric (stomach) secretions; and blocks cardiac (heart), vagal (nerve) inhibitory reflexes (bradycardia and bronchospasm) during induction of anesthesia and intubation (placing a tube in the throat). The drug may also be used intra-operatively (during surgery) to counteract drug-induced or vagal (nerve) reflex-induced arrhythmias (irregular heartbeat). The onset of action when given by vein is one minute. It cannot be used with the older gas anesthetic agent cyclopropane. Also, there are medications available to reverse the effects of glycopyrrolate if necessary.

The Cornell University College of Veterinary Medicine Animal Health Newsletter (Volume 4, No. 6, August 1986) reported on a relatively new gas anesthetic agent that may save future dogs; ISOFLURANE. This agent was originally developed for use on horses, who also have a sensitivity to anesthetic agents. It has been found to work equally well on smaller animals such as dogs and cats. Unfortunately, while it has SIGNIFICANT advantages over other anesthetics for small animals (it is less likely to produce heart-beat irregularities than halothane and less likely to cause kidney or liver toxicity than methoxyflurane), it is expensive. It also requires the use of a different type of gas anesthesia delivery apparatus than the other two mentioned gases. THE EXTRA COST IS WORTH IT! Many of the veterinary hospitals in my hometown of Houston, Texas, have switched over to this agent because of its SAFETY when compared to the other agents.

On the issue of premedication, barbiturates, the time-honored agent used to premedicate humans as well as animals before surgery (or teeth cleaning in dogs), should not be used on some Toys except in doses suitable for cats or not at all, because the effects are not reversible. Barbiturates are the agents used when we put a dog down. The veterinary college anesthesia departments consulted recommend narcotics, in particular NUMORPHAN. This is oxymorphone hydrochloride and is a semi-synthetic narcotic substitute for morphine, and is reversible with Narcan if too much is given. This drug is currently a "human" product, but Pittman-Moore, a veterinary drug company, will be bringing it out under veterinary labels shortly. Another new generation drug that will do well is BUTORPHANOL, another synthetic narcotic reversible by Narcan.

Many veterinarians have claimed that one cannot adequately clean a dog's teeth without the dog being completely asleep with gas anesthesia, as the ultrasound cleaning device disturbs most animals. This is simply not true. I persuaded my own veterinarian to try teeth cleaning under only very light sedation with a narcotic and Voila... he is now a believer. I have even had puppy teeth extracted under local anesthesia or very light narcotic sedation. While the new drugs are safer and veterinary knowledge becoming more fine tuned, it is still wisest not to put a Toy under gas anesthesia or barbiturate anesthesia unless absolutely necessary.

If your veterinarians have any question, please have them contact me and I will try to answer all questions or forward them to the appropriate authorities at the veterinary colleges.

I hope this information can help prevent future anesthetic deaths in our dogs. BUT, nothing is ever completely safe in medicine, and unfortunately, we will always lose a few. □

As our staff can not be all places at all times, we think this is an excellent way to keep the world apprised of your activities and successful undertakings. Secretaries: forget about a deadline, we know you're busy. Just submit as you can and we will publish as quickly as possible - your news will still be news, because we publish once a month - 12 times per year.

OHIO VALLEY POM CLUB...celebrated its first anniversary in March. We now have 55 members and are still growing. We held our first ALL TOY MATCH on 3/27 at the Holiday Inn, Akron, Ohio. It went just great — lots of entries — lots of happy people...and 15 POMS represented our Breed quite well. Two Poms placed in the Groups; ANIMATION'S BABY HUEY owned by Damella Powell, and IDLE ACRES AMERICAN TALE owned by Shari Stoffer. The facilities were just fantastic — all indoors — and all went very smoothly. We're hoping to have another here in the fall.

In July, OVPC will hold our Annual Picnic and Yard/Garage Sale near Strasburg, Ohio. We hope many people will come and see us. For more information, get in touch with Lorinda Vasuta or Secretary Betty Lepera. (216) 733-1453.

The June meeting hosted our first annual Awards Banquet as well as our election of officers. I will have more about that later...

We are very proud of our OVPC members that have been doing such outstanding things in the show ring...Olga Baker, who is one of our charter members, is, as everyone knows, co-owner of THE GREAT — CH. GREAT ELMS PRINCE CHARMING II. We congratulate her again on Prince's wonderful win at Westminster. What a super tribute to our terrific little breed. But...did you know that right here in Ohio, another of our club members has a Pom that has won THREE BESTS IN SHOW in the past 2 months? Bonnie Stetson of Akron, Ohio and her CH. GREAT ELMS PRIDE AND JOY who is handled by Karen Albrecht have been rolling right along. They won their first BIS in Minneapolis in March, then in April they took BACK-TO-BACK BESTS IN SHOW here in Ohio. We certainly hope they continue their winning ways.

Lorinda Vasuta and Darren Lane have just finished two lovely little girls...both are charmers. Ron Feyh just finished his nice little male. Ron is a super guy - he has done so much for our club. Whenever he and Larry Rookstool are around, there is NEVER a dull moment. Both are always coming up with great ideas for new things. For our recent Anniversary meeting and Toy match, they went together and surprised all of us by bringing TWO beautiful anniversary cakes — one to the meeting and the other one to our Match where judge Dorothy Kralik helped cut it.

Well, the weather here in Ohio is typical "Spring": one day hot and muggy, the next day chilly and wet. [Ed. note: What does "chilly" mean? JMcG] But there are those few "in-between" beauties that make the rest worthwhile. Clean, fresh air that smells so good; gentle wind that rustles the sheets that are finally hanging OUTSIDE on the line...lots of green grass — growing too fast to keep up with — but it smells so good after it is first cut...welcome, warm sun shining in through windows that could use another squirt of Windex...yes, that's spring in Ohio, and I love it so. The Poms are "full of it" as they run and play in the fresh green grass...they roll & rear & chase each other across the yard. It's great to watch them tumble around...then lay down with little back legs all stretched out behind them, belly deep in the cool green grass.

Like all the Seasons, Spring is "special" in its own way. It's like everything gets a chance to start all over again. Happy Spring to all, and HAPPY POMS TO ALL (even though it will be summer by the time you read this). Bobbie Stoffer

Dear Duane & Joe,

I just wanted to drop a note and let you know about the recent Fun Match I attended. It was sponsored by the South Carolina Federation of Dogs Clubs and was held in Columbia, South Carolina. The Match was a judge's training match. A licensed judge and 4-5 trainee judges went over each dog entered. I was fortunate enough for an adult Pom and a puppy Pom to place in the Group judging with a Group I and a Group II. By the time the day was over at least eight judges had gone over my dogs. It was excellent exposure for my dogs plus valuable ring experience.

I highly suggest every exhibitor take advantage of this type of Fun Match if one is ever held in their area.

Sincerely, Sharon Masnick, Huger, S.C.

To Whom It May Concern,

I have enclosed a check to continue my subscription to your fabulous magazine — The Pom Reader. Please continue to sent them to the same address as before.

Thank you very much for my past year as a subscriber to your magazine — It was very exciting and I love to see new ideas this next year with you.

WIREHAIRD DACHSHUND AWARDED BEST IN SHOW AT THIRD ANNUAL PURINA INVITATIONAL DOG SHOW

St. Louis, May 20, 1988—Ch. Pegden's Cactus Jack, a 2-year-old male Wirehaired Dachshund, took a long leap forward on his short, sturdy legs by winning the Best in Show award at the third annual Purina Invitational Dog Show May 2, 1988, in suburban St. Louis.

With Reserve Best in Show being won by a 3-year-old female Doberman Pinscher named Ch. Royal Tudor's Wild as the Wind, the Purina Invitational has now showcased six different breeds in the top two positions in its first three years of competition.

All proceeds from the Invitational once again benefit The Dog Museum, which relocated from New York City to the Jarville House, an historic 19th century house located in Queeny Park in suburban St. Louis County last November. The $15,000 raised at this year's show brings the total amount raised for the Dog Museum from the first three Purina Inventionals to more than $57,000.

The Purina Invitational Dog Show, the only invitational held for the top dogs in all breeds in the United States, featured 323 entrants from 40 states and Canada. Representing 137 of the total 151 breeds and varieties recognized by the American Kennel Club, the entrants were ranked among the top dogs in their respective breeds, as determined by AKC records for 1987 competitions.

This year's Invitational was filmed by the USA Cable Network and will be telecast on Tuesday, July 26 from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. Eastern, and rebroadcast from 10 a.m. to 12 noon on Wednesday, July 27. Dorothy Welsh, president of The Dog Museum, provided color commentary of the proceedings.

Agent Mark Stephenson led Ch. Pegden's Cactus Jack through his paces at the Best in Show competition following successful Best of Breed and Group participation earlier in the day. Cactus Jack is owned by Carl G. & Nancy Jo Fein of Tacoma, Washington. Reserve Best in Show Ch. Royal Tudor's Wild as the Wind, whose agent is Andy Linton, is owned by Arthur & Susan Korp and Beth Wilhite of San Jose, California.

An eminent panel of eight judges, including Best in Show judge Mrs. Robert V. Lindsay, participated in breed and group judging at the Invitational. All judging was done in accordance with American Kennel Club rules and regulations, with the exception of Reserve Best in Show.

"The diversity of championship caliber dogs has been very much evident at the first three Purina Inventionals," said George P. Cook, Director of professional programs for Ralston Purina. "Having six different breeds finish first and second over the three years indicates the high quality of breeding and showing across the spectrum of American Kennel Club recognized breeds and varieties."

Along with $2,500 in prize money, Cactus Jack will have his name engraved on the Silver Loving Cup that is permanently displayed in the lobby of the Dog Museum. Cactus Jack joins last year's winner, the German Shorthaired Pointer named Ch. NMK's Brittainia V Sibelstein, and inaugural winner Ch. Devon Puff and Stuff, the Bichon Frise, on the Cup's honor roll.

Winners in the seven Variety Groups included: Herding Group, judge Mrs. Maynard K. Drury: Ch. Windsong's Fiera, Bouvier de Flanders bitch owned by Mary Silkworth of Jackson, Michigan; Hound Group, judge Mr. William W. Fetner: Ch. Pegden's Cactus Jack; Non-Sporting Group, judge Miss Maxine V. Beam: Ch. Karamain Ramadin Dali-Pa, Tibetan Terrier dog owned by William & Sandra Hoffman & Woody Nelson of Cary, Illinois; Sporting Group, judge Mr. J. Donald Jones: the Gordon Setter dog Ch. Brawridge TNT of Kris owned by Charles E. Mann & R. L. Christanson of Sioux City, Iowa; Terrier Group, judge Mrs. Andrea Brunotte: the Miniature Schnauzer Ch. Sathgate Breakaway owned by Susan R. Atherton of Bartlesville, Oklahoma; Toy Group, judge Mrs. Jane G. Kay: the Maltese Ch. Bar None Firestarter owned by Pat Bullard of Nashville, Tennessee; Working Group, judge Mr. Joe Gregory: the Doberman Ch. Royal Tudor's Wild As The Wind. Rosettes were given to all Breed winners, each of the four Group placements, Best in Show and Reserve Best in Show, while all Invitational participants were presented with Certificates of Recognition.

The Dog Museum, according to Dorothy Welsh, is already drawing more visitors on a daily basis that it did during its stay in Manhattan's insurance district. "With our wonderful new facilities at the Jarville House in Queeny Park in St. Louis County, we anticipate steady growth in appreciation by the dog fancy, as well as the general public," says Welsh. "We'll be able to plan exhibits, such as our current 'The Dog Illustrated', to better serve our constituents and further educate dog lovers about the extensive treasures housed at the museum."

The Purina Invitational was supported by Roy Jones Dog Show, Inc., and the St. Louis County Parks and Recreation Department. Ralston Purina is the leading manufacturer of dog foods and a leader in dog nutrition.
